Course Requirements and Instructional Methods

Reading Notes (15 points/chapter, 14 chapters, 210 points in total)

Reading assigned chapters before attending classes is an important process of learning. Students are expected to read all the assigned chapters as assigned in syllabus and are required to submit 2-3 pages reading notes. The reading notes should include all the concepts, terms, theories, main ideas discussed in the assigned chapters.

Class Attendance (5 points/class, 30 classes, 150 points in total)

Students are expected to attend all classes. If a student missed a class or leaves early, they may not receive class attendance points for that day.

Class Participation/Discussion (10 points/class, 28 classes, 280 points in total)

Class participation and discussion are based on the reading notes of students which are required to be done prior each class and to submit at the end of the class. Students will be asked to discuss their own understandings of the concepts, terms, theories, main ideas of each chapter, and to give concrete examples to support their understandings and opinions. Concrete examples can be the examples based on real-life experiences, made-up stories, or the examples directly from textbook. If the students missed the class or leaves early, they may not receive class participation points for that day.

Final-Term Multiple Choice Question Quizzes (0.5 points/question; 100 points total)

At the Final-Term of this semester, you will complete Multiple Choice Question Quizzes designed to assess your comprehension of the key concepts, theories, and discussions covered in each chapter learned. These quizzes reinforce learning objectives and ensure you engage critically with the material and during the classes.

Final paper/Exam (260 points in total)

Students will write a 5-7 page paper (equivalent to 1,500-2,000 words) to analyze a social phenomenon in a sociological perspective. The sociological concepts, theories, especially one of the three major sociological theories/paradigms (structural functionalism, the conflict theory and the symbolic interactionism) learned in this semester should be used properly to analyze the social phenomenon. Students are expected to compare, contrast several relative concepts and theories during their analysis under one topic in this paper and discuss why these concepts and theories can be applicable to this social phenomenon.
