Course Objectives:

By the completion of the course, each student will:

1. Be able to recognize Sociology as a science that approaches the study of human behavior in a systematic manner.
2. Be able to recognize social problems and social issues in the United States and in cultures throughout the world.
3. Be able to describe the importance of political forces in understanding our society and the process of social change.
4. Be able to list the components of culture and their impact on human behavior.
5. Be able to identify the causes and processes of deviant behavior and the mechanisms of social control.
6. Be able to define the various forms of marriage and family dynamics.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Apply the rules of the scientific method and empirical analysis in understanding social behavior.
2. Distinguish different major Sociological theoretical perspectives that explain social constructs.
3. Analyze the socialization process and identify the different types of socialization through the life cycle.

Text: The Real World: An Introduction to Sociology by Kerry Ferris and Jill Stein

*Due to time constraints, there might be changes to the dates that chapters & assignments are covered/discussed in class.

Makeup and Late Assignments:

*No make-ups on quizzes/exams will be given without a written statement from a U. S. physician.

Assignments:

*All submitted assignments must be typed unless otherwise stated. *Assignments printed out from a website then need all pertinent information to be highlighted for credit.

*Extra Credit will be available for completion throughout the term.

*Study Guides will be handed out before the Midterm & Final Exam only, but not for the Quiz.

*If you know you are not going to be present on an exam day, you must notify me at least one week before the exam in order to make possible arrangements.

I do not accept late work.
