Course Description

This course is designed for students with disabilities who have successfully completed Computer Access I. (DSPS 054). Students will enhance their computer access skills through the completion of assignments and/or projects. This will allow them to use PC's in other basic skills support courses. (Non-transferable, non- degree applicable).

Course Outcomes

1. Students will continue to use accessible software that will assist them with their particular disabilities.

2. Students will improve on their typing skills and basic computer skills.

3. Students will be able to complete assignments for classes which they are concurrently enrolled in utilizing the adaptive software.

4. Students will be responsible for logging into the High Tech Center to record their hours so that they can receive credit for this course. By the end of the semester, 100% of students will be logging into the lab independently or be responsible for requesting assistance from the instructor or lab assistants.

5. To improve communication between IVC personnel and student, the student will be taught to create a personal email address and to add it to their personal information on Webstar.

Course Goals

Students will improve on their basic computer and typing skills. They will continue to improve on their ability to use software and/or hardware that will assist them with their disabilities.

Required Text: None

Course Grading Procedure

Attendance is mandatory. Students must complete 54 hours in order to receive credit. Students need to log-in and log-out on the attendance computer when entering and exiting the lab. Students may be dropped from the course for falling behind on hours without giving prior notification.

Please Note

Students who need special services or accommodations due to their disability need to contact the instructor/counselor in the Mel Wendrick Access Center.

Students are expected to exercise academic honesty and integrity. Cheating, plagiarism and viewing inappropriate web sites are violations that may result in disciplinary action, and this could include a recommendation for dismissal. In addition, students are required to adhere to the Standards of Student Conduct and the college's regulations.
